

Rethinking Oleochemistry

Coatings & Polymers Industries

Trucent Renewable Chemicals (TRC) is a North American manufacturer of oleochemicals, strategically located in the Midwest. Using domestically sourced, plant-based feedstocks and controlled production methods, TRC produces fatty acids with consistent quality for demanding polymer and coatings applications.

For alkyd resin and polymer manufacturers, raw material consistency directly impacts processing and finished product performance. TRC supplies fatty acid products designed to meet technical specifications for coatings and polymer systems, supporting predictable formulation and production outcomes.

TRC's domestic production model shortens the supply chain and provides a more stable alternative to imported raw materials. The result is dependable availability and greater control over material inputs. All TRC products are non-tallow, non-palm, and Kosher-certified. TRC works with customers to supply standard products or develop tailored solutions aligned with specific formulation and performance requirements.
